Comment: Why the heck is it that every time Mississippi, Arkansas or Texas gripes about some seeming iniquity Louisiana always has to make changes which hurt only Louisianians? I am very much against the change which lowers the limit on Crappie on Toledo Bend Reservoir. Since I only fish for Crappie and Bream in Louisiana, I have always made the long drive up there just to fish for Crappie since the creel limit is 50 a day. Since I am disabled and on a fixed income, I can only afford to make one or two trips a year up there and being able to keep 50 fish is the only thing that makes it economically attractive. This new ruling will make me stop fishing there. Plus it will only hurt one of the most economically depressed areas of the state. Why don't you ask the people who depend upon Toledo Bend Reservoir for a living what they think about lowering the limit to 25 Crappie. I guarantee you will get an ear full of negative remarks, and most of them will not be nearly as polite as mine have been! Lately fishing everywhere has been taking big hits on our creel limits. Maybe it is needed in saltwater zones, but it is not needed for Crappie on Toledo Bend.

Isn't LDWF's primary job to provide good hunting and fishing opportunities to the citizens of our great state?

Please reconsider lowering the Crappie limit on Toledo Bend Reservoir.

Sincerely,

Criss Morgan
